

Briannah Hutchinson

12/3/19

MA1DAFT3

Good writing is a form of art I believe . To be a good writer, or get good at writing takes time and progress. You have to keep looking, and making changes to get better at what you do. When writing you always have more than one paper wrote when someone reads, or go over your paper you want the reader to be engrossing what you wrote. Engrossing is absorbing all one's attention or interest. However making your writing engrossing for the readers may seem hard , because to grab the reader's attention. You have to feel you have to be a good writer when the people who you feel are good writers don't always have the reader's attention sometimes. Good writing is different genres and different categories.

As I go around and ask peers what they feel good writing is they all see good writing in different perspectives. One of the peers said “ good writing is interesting ideas that are important to the topic.

Someone else says good writing is Order of ideas , how the writer feels. Writing about things the reader wants to hear. As I go around asking multiple people this same question they all tell what they truly feel.

This peer feels good writing is having a main focus so you have to stay on topic. Making sure you have good details and some commentary. Commentary is an expression of opinions.

The Final person says good writing is Being Able To Clearly Explain The Topic You Are Writing About. Meaning The Person Reading It Should Understand Your Exact Point Whether They Had Knowledge About Your Topic Or Not. Good Writing Is Proper Grammar, Spelling & Punctuation.

Good writing has no limit in writing. Good writing makes the reader feel overflowing when reading. Good writing makes people want to read more about it. good writing says something readers can say gives value. Good writing is reading about good writing.

Now that I told you what I think and my peers around me think good writing is, I hope it helps you think do you know what good writing is. The more you write the better you get.

My belief about good writing changed since I wrote this. To be a good writer you have to learn first. Doing papers that I never did before challenged my mind and brought out the skills i've been hiding all this time. It's a process you have to go through to have these feelings. I love to type papers now, its releaf.